Part 1

Early one morning, Lulu Ladybug found five round dewdrops on a clover leaf. They sparkled like tiny glass marbles in the sun.

Part 2

Her beetle friend Dot came to look. Together they pointed and counted slowly: one, two, three, four, five.

Part 3

A droopy daisy nearby whispered that its roots were dry. Lulu and Dot wanted to carry the dewdrops to help it.

Part 4

They made two little cups from flower petals. Lulu carried one drop, and Dot carried another drop to the daisy.

Part 5

Two more careful trips brought two more drops to the dry roots. Only one shiny dewdrop remained on the clover leaf.

Part 6

Lulu wanted the last drop for breakfast, and Dot did too. They paused, looked at the thirsty daisy, and chose to share it.

Part 7

They pushed the last drop into both petal cups. Each friend sipped a tiny taste, then poured the rest beside the daisy.

Part 8

The daisy lifted its yellow face. Lulu and Dot counted five happy drops again and learned that sharing can help everyone feel cared for.
