Part 1

Milo the bunny built a long block road for three toy cars. He worked carefully from the rug to the window.

Part 2

Ari turned around too quickly and bumped the road. Blocks fell apart, and Milo's whole body filled with hot anger.

Part 3

Milo raised one block, then remembered blocks were for building. He placed it down and moved to the blue mat.

Part 4

On the mat, Milo pushed his feet safely into the floor five times. His angry stomps slowly became gentle taps.

Part 5

Milo said, "I feel mad because my road fell. Please ask before walking near my blocks." Ari listened carefully.

Part 6

Ari said he was sorry and offered to help. Milo showed him where the bridge and straight pieces belonged.

Part 7

Together they rebuilt the road with extra space around it. All three cars rolled safely beneath the block bridge.

Part 8

Milo learned anger could bring a strong message. Safe movement and clear words helped him share that message kindly.
