Part 1

A chilly wind blew through Pine Park. Finn Fox wrapped his long blue scarf around his neck and walked toward the playground.

Part 2

Ruby Rabbit sat on a bench rubbing her paws. She had forgotten her scarf, and the wind slipped around her little green coat.

Part 3

Finn noticed Ruby shiver. His scarf was his favorite, and he did not want to stretch it. Then another cold gust made Ruby’s ears tremble.

Part 4

“We can both use it,” Finn said. He sat beside Ruby and wrapped one end of the scarf around each of them.

Part 5

The scarf made a warm blue bridge between the two friends. Ruby smiled. “Thank you for noticing me,” she said.

Part 6

They walked slowly to the playground, staying side by side so the scarf would not pull. Moving together kept them warm.

Part 7

At the playground hut, the keeper gave them warm apple drink. Finn and Ruby shared the bench and watched leaves dance.

Part 8

Finn’s scarf was still his favorite. Now it also reminded him that warmth feels even better when it is shared.
