Part 1

Leo Lion loved his big morning roar. One day he found a little bird named Wren hiding behind a grass clump, too shy to sing.

Part 2

Leo gave his biggest roar to make Wren feel brave. The grass shook, and Wren hid even deeper.

Part 3

Leo lowered his head and apologized. ‘My sound was too big for you. What kind of sound would help?’ he asked.

Part 4

Wren whispered, ‘A tiny one.’ Leo took a small breath and made the gentlest little ‘rmm’ he could.

Part 5

Wren peeked out and answered with one quiet chirp. Leo made another tiny roar, and Wren gave two brighter chirps.

Part 6

They practiced together: tiny roar, little chirp, tiny roar, little chirp. The song grew cheerful without becoming loud.

Part 7

Wren flew to the top of the grass and sang a clear morning tune. Leo listened with a proud, peaceful smile.

Part 8

Wren thanked Leo for changing his sound. Leo learned that being strong can mean using just the right amount of strength for a friend.
